

Week 5 GJ - Saaif Ahmed

Mon (10/12/20):

I am grateful that today there is no classes. I can enjoy today just as a normal Sunday. This weekend has been great. Basically every day I have done exactly what I want and at night my friend has made some killer dinners every night. Gumbo, roast beef, beef stew are some of the things he made. Honestly I am so happy that he's my friend.

Tues (10/13/20):

I am grateful that my test went relatively well today. Honestly I thought that it would go much worse. But I was able to answer every question. Now whether those turned out to be accurate is another story by I'm willing to wager 80% of my answers make sense. Not hoping for much but hoping for something.

Wed (10/14/20):

I am grateful that today we recorded our dance. Dynamite by BTS (grader take a look if you want). It's a great dance and I feel really great doing it. It's hard to do it with a mask since it's pretty free and active. But nonetheless hitting the moves on the beats is great. Now I get to learn a new dance and become a better dancer.

Thurs (10/15/20):

I am grateful for today's weather. It's like really beautiful today. I opened my window and let the breeze in. It's really nice. The sky was extraordinarily blue. I wish we recorded our dance in this weather so that we could do it on concrete. My room got a ton colder which relatively speaking in today's weather was welcomed.

Fri (10/16/20):

I am thankful for my friend Casey taking us to Burger King. We had coupons in the mail for a couple of fast food places. Honestly a good burger is what I needed. Quarantine is not fun and not being able to access stuff is annoying. Getting a burger, four burgers actually, was very much enjoyed.